PROF. CHITTENDEN'S ANALYSIS IN THE JENNIE CRAMER CASE.

Unsafe to say Whether the Poison was Taken Within One or Within Five Days of her Death, or How it was Taken—A Witness who Once Saw a Drowned Body Smile.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 6.—This has been the second day of the hearing in the case of Walter and James Malley, Jr., charged with the murder of Jennie Cramer. The day is one of fog and great sultriness. Through the windows of Thompson's Hall, in West Haven borough, the sun since early morning has appeared like the moon-shine of its beams, and of a strange violet color. Viseases have been alarmed, and have connected the solar appearance with the removal of the President and with all sorts of illus. The hearing was resumed at 10 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Cramer, the father and mother of the dead girl, were present, as were Walter and James Malley, Jr., Prof. Chittenden was also on hand with his mahogany box. Justice Booth rapped upon his desk, and the examination of witnesses was begun.

Dr. William H. Hutchins of New Haven was called. His testimony corroborated that of Dr. Prudden yesterday, and carried out the identification of Jennie Cramer's remains until they passed into the hands of Prof. Chittenden.

William F. Stahl, the New Haven undertaker, into whose hands the body of Jennie Cramer was given after it had been viewed at the West Haven morgue by the coroner, testified that he took out the last of the internal organs. He testified that before the post mortem he washed the face of the body with a solution which had been recommended to him by Dr. Blauert, and which was supposed to keep the skin in condition.

Prof. Joseph H. Chapman, of the physiological chemistry and toxicology in Yale College, has pursued these branches of science since 1872, and is a graduate of the University of Heidelberg, Germany. He had, before the examination of the witness, come prepared to testify.
